50 Ways to Raise Your Vibration

“As you think, you vibrate. As you vibrate, you attract.” – Abraham Hicks

Everything radiates energy because we are all made of energy. How many times have you heard the phrases “Sending good vibes”, “That place gave off a bad vibe”, and “Don’t kill my vibe”? When it comes to our life, the one thing we can control is ourselves and the energetic vibration we are choosing to live from. Your vibrational frequency can be determined by how you’re feeling. The higher the mood, the higher the frequency. The lower the mood, the lower the frequency. When you are vibrating at a higher frequency, you attract positive opportunities and things into your life that match this “positive” feeling. Likewise, vibrating at a lower frequency attracts opportunities and things into your life that match the “negative” feeling. What we put out is what we attract, and so you can learn to use your emotions as a gauge to determine your vibrational frequency.

This is not the part where we say life will always be easy, you will never have a bad day and will never be feeling down, depressed, unmotivated, and unhappy. We’re all human and it’s only natural to have bad feelings and bad days. This will not make you less spiritual or ruin your connection with your higher self. But when you’re down in the dumps, you don’t have to stay there. You always have a choice, and life is simply too beautiful to feel bad all the time. You can change the bad feeling by changing your vibe.

Your good vibes are not only beneficial to you, they are beneficial to others because the human body is very sensitive to vibrational energy (made of energy, right?) and our vibrations can make a lasting impact on other people and places. If you want to channel a more positive vibe to put out into the world, these are some practices that will help you shift your vibrational energy. When you make cultivating good vibrations a daily habit, it becomes a lifestyle. Just think about what kind of world we could create if everyone took responsibility for their own vibration. Changing the world really is an inside job.
